QUEENSWARE AND CHINA, AT N. YORK PRICES.
A CARD FOR 1846.
COUNTRY MERCHANTS who are in the habit of purchasing their Queensware and China in the Eastern Cities, would do well to bear in mind that they have now a chance of saving from $12 to $15 per case, by making their purchases of the subscribers in Louisville. We are the first in the Western country to receive these Goods at eastern prices, without carriage, thereby making a saving of all freight and charges to Western merchants, being about $12 to $15 per case, also the loss of time in getting their goods. We have taken particular care to find out the lowest eastern prices, and will here give a sample, viz: 3 quart White Granite, or any colour Granite Pitchers, $1.50 per dozen; 2 dozen, or 24 each plates, White Granite or any colour, 75 cents per dozen; Painted Tins 10 cents per set, and 50 sets to $100, or one set to every $2 of bill. Every article in the line proportionably low. Our stock will be very full and complete in February. J. MCINTIRE & BROTHER, Louisville, Ky.

REMOVAL.—We have moved to the large and commodious Warehouse recently built by us, No. 448, Main, between 5th and 6th cross streets, where we shall be happy to have a call from our old friends and customers, and buyers generally, and where we can offer them the largest and best assortment of Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, and Glass Ware, and all other Goods, at the lowest rates, and in the most prompt manner. We have also a large stock of French, English, and American Goods, at prices below what these articles have usually been sold at in this country. The very exorbitant prices at which these articles were sold in the large cities in the West, was a subject of complaint for many years; we were the first to reduce these prices, and the large patronage that we have received during the past season, is a sufficient proof of this fact; and to those who are disposed to buy goods at the lowest rates, and to save us, give us your patronage and we will certainly give you full satisfaction.

THE BEST, AND CHEAPEST, AND MOST UNIFORM SERIES OF STANDARD SCHOOL BOOKS EVER PUBLISHED.
TO these engaged in the important, but arduous task of instructing youth, MCGUFFEY'S ECLECTIC READERS, Nos. ONE, TWO, THREE AND FOUR, are now presented, thoroughly revised, and greatly enlarged, with many important improvements. They are now in a permanent stereotype form, NO FURTHER ALTERATIONS being intended.
Prof. McGuffey's enthusiastic devotion to the cause of Education, his fine taste and discriminating mind, and his practical experience as an instructor, render him peculiarly fitted for the department of authorship, to which he has given his attention. The suggestions of intelligent teachers who had used the former editions of the series, and the valuable aid afforded him in the revision of the series, have also furnished him with unusual facilities for advantageously revising and enlarging these works.
In this series, comprising as it does, a careful selection of instructive, entertaining and moral matter, progressively arranged, and graduated with reference to the capacity of the pupil, Prof. McGuffey has afforded to parents and teachers, a most thorough, complete, and efficient auxiliary in the education of youth. Its extensive use has been sufficient for the development and just appreciation of its many excellencies. The result is, that intelligent teachers pronounce it the most complete series now before the public.
The intrinsic merit of Prof. McGuffey's Eclectic Readers, having called for them an unparalleled and rapidly increasing circulation, the publisher is enabled, notwithstanding the heavy expenditure in their revision and enlargement, to manufacture them in the most useful and most durable manner, while they are now furnished at such low prices, that they are the CHEAPEST, as well as the best school reading books extant.
JUST PUBLISHED,
MCGUFFEY'S RHETORICAL GUIDE, or Fifth Reader, of the Eclectic Series—40 pages, 12mo., containing copious and minute rules, examples and exercises in articulation, inflection, emphasis, accent, quantity, rhetorical pause, modulation, expression, reading of poetry, rhetorical dialogue, gesture, and their collator, all subjects, to which are added a great variety of elegant reading lessons, (about one half prose and half poetry), selected from the most classic writers, furnishing interesting and instructive specimens of various styles of composition. This work has been prepared with very great care, and with reference to making it a useful, practical, and standard book; and the publisher confidently hopes, that the Rhetorical Guide of Mr. McGuffey is well adapted to supply the wants of classes in rhetorical reading in our Academies, High Schools and Colleges.
MCGUFFEY'S ECLECTIC READERS are printed and published at 56, Main Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, by

SPEECH OF MR. BOTTIS, OF NELSON,

Delivered in the House of Representatives, in Committee of the Whole, January 12, 1846, in opposition to the Convention Bill.

MR. CHAIRMAN: When this bill, which is now submitted to our deliberation, was first proposed to this House, I determined to cast a silent vote, but the progress of debate and other circumstances, which I need not now mention, have induced me to change my purpose.

I will, therefore, if indulged a short time, endeavor to discharge that duty, that imperative duty, which I conceive I owe to my constituents, by expressing in this public manner, my disapprobation, my unqualified disapprobation, of the revolutionary measure now under consideration.

Should I remain silent—should I fail on this occasion, to utter my most solemn protest against the passage of this bill, which strikes at the very root and foundation of the government, I should perhaps prove recreant to the charge with which I am entrusted, unfaithful to my constituents, and unworthy the seat which I occupy.

There are several reasons which induce me to oppose the passage of this bill. The first is, that my constituents are decidedly opposed to it; the second is, that it is uncalculated for; and the third is, that it is inexpedient. I will now examine these several reasons in their numerical and methodical order.

The first of these reasons or positions assumed against the passage this bill, (it is true,) a matter of but minor importance, when the interest of the whole State at large is surveyed;

arrive, (which God forbid!) when our free institutions shall be swept away, and remembered only in historic song—when the broad principles of our Constitution, the great bulwark of human liberty, and an imperishable monument of human wisdom and greatness, shall sink in majestic ruins, I am persuaded, that the future historian who will rise up in after ages, when he casts his eye up the long descending line of time, and beholds our foundered fragments and scattered particles, will exclaim, with the profoundest degree of wonder and astonishment, "this was all the work of a spirit of innovation!"

Mr. Chairman—I am no innovator. My motto is, when Government secures our citizens in the quiet pursuit of wealth and peace, we should sustain it, we should let it alone. Let us, then, resolve to hold on to this venerable Ship of State. She has weathered the pelting storms of 1824-5, and richly laden with the rights of man, she has come safely into port, making her way against adverse winds and opposing tides. I know not what others, who are not pledged, may do, but as for myself, I am determined to cling to this vessel of State, as long as there's a plank, a nail, or a rafter!

THE COMMONWEALTH.

THO. B. STEVENSON, Editor.

MONDAY, JANUARY 19, 1846.

The public printer says the Herald, in speaking of the public printing, "spoke upon a public subject, as freemen had a right to do." We admit this, though we do not admit that the Herald had a right to ascribe sinister motives to us for doing the same thing.

The Herald certainly had, to say the least, as good right to ascribe sinister motives to the Yeoman, as the latter had to insinuate that we made illegal charges for printing, or to charge the former with toydism, when the Yeoman knew that the insinuations and charges were not true.

We know no good reason why a public officer's conduct should not be investigated during the sitting of the Legislature as well as at any other time. We find the political friends of the present public printer in Congress investigating the conduct of the public printer of the United States with great zeal—assailing him on all occasions and trying by every means to lessen his profits. Indeed we find that the Congressional printer's own political friends have reduced his prices, or have brought forward a resolution to do so in the Senate, which we doubt not will be adopted, and we find the representative from this district taking the lead in these investigations.—Yeoman.

Our conduct has always been a fair subject of fair investigation, and it has been investigated by our desire every year, as we hope it will be again this year. And we have no apprehension that a scrutiny now will result any more to our disadvantage than did those instituted heretofore.

We did not say, directly or indirectly, as the Yeoman endeavors obliquely to imply, that an investigation during the session would be indecorous; but on the contrary, that we both courted and defied investigation. We said, (whenever the Yeoman could not possibly, except willfully, misunderstand,) that we did not think it degrading, on our part, to endeavor to influence opinions, pro or con, pending an investigation, and that we cared not how much others might attempt it. And we now add, that we care less for such attempts by the Yeoman, than for similar ones from any other source whatever, satisfied as we are, that those sought to be influenced thereby, understand the quo animo quite as well as we.

But the Yeoman now for the first time, refers to the Congressional printing. He well knows that the rates allowed by Congress are much higher than those paid by Kentucky; yet he makes no outcry against Blair & Rives, or Ritchie & Heiss, who receive more in one year than the Public Printer of Kentucky receives in fifteen or twenty years. Ah! but we are told Congress is likely to reduce the rates! Nam verum—we shall see. We have seen something about the proposed reduction; and we now pledge ourselves, should the Legislature of Kentucky be pleased to order that the compensation of the Public Printer shall hereafter be the same allowed by Congress, by the rates to be prescribed during the present session of Congress, to Ritchie & Heiss, to abide by the order, although the amount of work by the latter is probably forty times more per annum than we enjoy. Knowing that the Democrats always allow their faithful officers full and fair compensation, we hazard little loss, should we be re-elected, by making this pledge.

The Yeoman endeavors to produce the impression that we have charged three times for the same printing, though he knows the insinuation is false. We repeat again, for the twentieth time, that we have never charged any order but once, and that we have never made any charge except in strict accordance with law. And now, to refute these malicious and willfully unjust imputations, we produce the following from an editorial of the Yeoman, when we compelled him to retract similar charges, though he did with a very bad grace. But here is the testimony of the Yeoman itself, that our charges were in accordance with law, though he couples with the confession a gross calumny upon the majority of the Legislature:

From the Yeoman, March 14, 1845.

"We did not reproach the Printer for charging in this way, because we knew his party Legislature not only knew it, but intended it should be so. We knew it was a bonus to his press for any dirty work they might claim at his hands. We attach more blame to his party, therefore, than we do to him, both being blameable enough."

Let it be remembered that this confession of the Yeoman man was forced out of him by our triumphant refutation of the very same charges against us which he now renews, and no one can be at a loss to estimate the worth and the motive of the author. We disdain to defend the Whig party of the Legislature against the infamous calumny uttered above. They need no defence at our hands. There never has been a year when our claims have not been sanctioned by the Democrats as well as the Whigs.

MICHIGAN.—Complete returns of the census show a population of 304,285—a gain in five years of 92,018.

We are requested by one of the publishers to state that "Morehead's Practice" will be issued from the press in ten days or two weeks, and will be found on sale, wholesale and retail, at Todd's Bookstore.

For the Daily Commonwealth.

Mr. Editor: On Friday last I visited an interesting and highly entertaining examination of Mrs. Ruxton's scholars. Geography, Arithmetic, History, Astronomy, Natural and Moral Philosophy, "Biblical Questions," &c., were thoroughly and satisfactorily reviewed.

'Twas delightful to see little girls of six or seven years of age, answer with promptness so many difficult questions—difficult for girls of their age.

Many well executed drawings were exhibited, which evidenced not only that Mrs. R. was a competent teacher of the art, but that those who executed them, were possessed of a lively imagination. Several well written compositions were read, which attracted marked attention; among them was one by Miss S, one by Miss A*, one by Miss R, &c.

Moral as well as mental culture appears to be an anxious endeavor of Mrs. R. The public examination of her scholars has shown her to be a capable and experienced teacher of the young female.

Gratifying is it to see female education receiving that care, and assuming that stand which its importance demands.

A VISITOR.

For the Commonwealth.

Mr. STEVENSON:—

I am pleased to see that in your columns you sometimes mingle literary with political discussions. In a late number of your daily paper, I observe a specimen of the poetry of Goethe; I will ask you to give insertion to one of his prose. Let us take it from 'Wilhelm Meister's Apprenticeship,' of which there is an admirable English translation by Thomas Carlyle. This work is called a novel for want of a suitable English descriptive name, but it differs widely from the common notion of a novel. The slender narrative which runs through it is merely a frame upon which the author works criticisms on art, philosophical disquisitions, and researches into the deeper mysteries of our spiritual nature. It is a history of the gradual development of man's faculties and endowments; a panorama of human life—its joys and sorrows—its mingled good and evil: it passes in review before us specimens of all the classes of mankind. Like every masterpiece of genius, 'Wilhelm Meister' cannot be fully relished or understood until after repeated perusals; those passages which at first may appear trifling or absurd, will be found, on a more careful examination, to cover profound thought. In the first book—for instance—under the guise of Wilhelm's childish reminiscences of his attempts to perform plays with puppets, Goethe seems to have allegorized the origin and growth of the drama in the infancy of the human race. It was from the Mignon of this novel that Scott—who was in the habit of stealing every good thing he could lay hands on—copied his Fenella in 'Peveril of the Peak.'

Let us open the volume at random:—we have lighted on the eulogy of Commerce: Wilhelm, the hero of the novel, is destined by his father—a wealthy merchant—for his own vocation; but the imaginative youth despises Trade, and in a friendly contention with the calm sensible Werner, who has adopted merchandizing from choice, Wilhelm gives a glowing description of the grandeur of the Poet's calling: Werner utters in reply the following eulogy on Commerce. The readers of the Commonwealth who may have fancied that vending goods is a dreary occupation, will be surprised to find how much poetry there really is in perambulation and Ladies' bonnets, in raw cotton and raw hides, in silks and satins, in turpentine and tea-cups, in mitts, mackarel, mouse-traps and muslin-de-laine.

"Well, here is The Youth at the porting of the Ways; it has just come into my hand," said Wilhelm, drawing out a bunch of papers from the rest; "this at least is finished, whatever else it may be."

"Away with it, to the fire with it," cried Werner. "The invention does not deserve the smallest praise: that affair has plagued me enough already, and drawn upon yourself your father's wrath. The verses may be altogether beautiful; but the meaning of them is fundamentally false. I still recollect your Commerce personified; a shriveled, wretched-looking sybil she was. I suppose you picked up the image of her from some miserable huckster's shop. At that time you had no true idea at all of trade; whilst I could not think of any man whose spirit was, or needed to be, more enlarged than the spirit of a genuine merchant. What a thing is it to see the order which prevails throughout his business! By means of this he can at any time survey the general whole, without needing to perplex himself in the details. What advantages does he derive from the system of book-keeping by double entry! It is among the finest inventions of the human mind; every prudent master of a house should introduce it into his economy."

"Pardon me," said Wilhelm, smiling; "you begin by the form, as if it were the matter: you traders commonly, in your additions and balancings, forget what is the proper net result of life."

"My good friend, you do not see how form and matter are in this case one; how neither can exist without the other. Order and arrangement increase the desire to save and get. A man embarrassed in his circumstances, and conducting them imprudently, likes best to continue in the dark; he will not gladly reckon up the debtor entries he is charged with. But on the other hand, there is nothing to a prudent manager more pleasant than daily to set before himself the sums of his growing fortune. Even a mischance, if it surprise and vex, will not fright him; for he knows at once what gains he has acquired to cast into the other scale. I am convinced, my friend, that if you once had a proper taste for our employments, you would grant that many faculties of the mind are called into full and vigorous play by them."

"Possibly this journey I am thinking of may bring me to other thoughts."

"O, certainly. Believe me, you want but to look upon some great scene of activity to make you ours forever; and when you come back, you will joyfully enrol yourself among that class of men whose art it is to draw towards themselves a portion of the money, and materials of enjoyment, which circulate in their appointed course through the world. Cast a look on the natural and artificial productions of all the regions of the earth; consider how they have become, one here, another there, articles of necessity for men. How pleasant and how intellectual a task is it to calculate, at any moment, what is most required, and yet is wanting, or hard to find; to procure for each easily and soon what he demands; to lay in your stock prudently beforehand, and then to enjoy the profit of every pulse in that mighty circulation. This, it appears to me, is what no man that has a head can attend to without pleasure."

Wilhelm seemed to acquiesce, and Werner continued.

"Do but visit one or two great trading-towns, one or two seaports, and see if you can withstand the impression. When you observe how many men are busy, whence so many things have come, and whether they are going, you will feel as if you too could gladly mingle in the business. You will then see the smallest piece of ware in its connexion with the whole mercantile concern; and for that very reason you will reckon nothing paltry, because every thing augments the circulation by which you yourself are supported."

"The great ones of the world," continued Werner, "have taken this earth of ours to themselves; they live in the midst of splendor and superfluity. The smallest nook of the land is already a possession; none may touch it or meddle with it: offices and civic callings bring in little profit; where then will you find more honest acquisitions, juster conquests than those of trade? If the princes of this world hold the rivers, the high-ways, the havens in their power, and take a heavy tribute from every thing that passes through them, may not we embrace with joy the opportunity of levying tax and toll, by our activity, on those commodities which the real or imaginary wants of men have rendered indispensable? I can promise you, if you would rightly apply your poetic views, my goddess might be represented as an invincible, victorious queen, and boldly opposed to yours. It is true, she bears the olive rather than the sword; dagger or chain she knows not; but she too, gives crowns to her favorites; which, without offence to yours be it said, are of true gold from the furnace and the mine, and glance with genuine pearls, which she brings up from the depths of the ocean, by the hands of her unwearied servants."

"And for you," exclaimed Werner, "who take so warm an interest in human concerns, what a sight will it be to behold the fortune which accompanies bold undertakings distributed to men before your eyes. What is more spirit-stirring than the aspect of a ship arriving from a lucky voyage, or soon returning with a rich capture? Not alone the relatives, the acquaintances, and those that share with the adventurers, but every unconcerned spectator also is excited, when he sees the joy with which the long-imprisoned seaman springs on land before his keel has wholly reached it, feeling that he is free once more, and now can trust what he has rescued from the false sea to the firm and faithful earth. It is not, my friend, in figures of arithmetic alone that gain presents itself before us; fortune is the goddess of breathing men; to feel her favors truly, we must live and be men who toil with their living minds and bodies, and enjoy with them also."
